DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Suzuki.

As per claim 1, Suzuki discloses an air conditioning control system comprising a plurality of indoor units (11, 12), an outdoor unit 13, power meter 25 connected to the outdoor unit, and a central control unit (remote controller 24) calculating the respective power consumptions of the individual indoor units based on the airflow at each unit and the power consumption at the outdoor unit, and displays the calculated amounts (see Constitution section).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

Art Unit: 3744

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 2 and 3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Suzuki in view of Lynch.

As per claims 2 and 3, Suzuki does not specify the type of communication line. However, as taught by Lynch, RS485 communication lines are old and well-known and have been applied to communication between indoor units, outdoor units, and controllers of air conditioning systems (columns 5, lines 40-56). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to apply such communication lines for the purpose of facilitating communication between the different system components.

Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sharood et al.

As per claim 4, Ethernet protocols and protocol conversion bridges are common and well-known in the art and have been applied to refrigeration-type systems as taught by Sharood et al. Again, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to apply such communication lines for the purpose of facilitating communication between the different system components.

Claim 12 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Suzuki in view of Kondo et al.

As per claim 12, Suzuki teaches all aspects of the claim (as discussed above regarding claim 1), except a database storing equipment information. Kondo et al. teaches a similar arrangement for calculating power consumption at indoor units wherein a database (memory means 21) includes weight coefficients based on the capacities different indoor units. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to apply such a database to the system of Suzuki for the similar purpose of taking into account indoor units having different capacities.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 5-11 and 13 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
